

International Projects

At the School of Creative Arts Therapies, we believe that working together globally is the best way to advance the field of creative arts therapies.

The Graduate School of Creative Arts Therapies organizes summits for healthcare professionals from around the world. Some of the summits are held on University of Haifa campus, while others are held outside of Israel. These summits focus on therapeutic techniques in each of the specialization modalities as well as innovative research. Participants enjoy a variety of presentations, workshops and discussion groups.

The School has an electronic journal, Academic Journal of Creative Arts Therapies, and findings from the Creative Arts Therapies Research Center, as well as cutting-edge features submitted by international therapists, are published in the journal.

Professors and lecturers at the Graduate School of Creative Arts Therapies have professional relationships with professors and healthcare practitioners in other countries, including the United States, the United Kingdom, Spain, Italy, Greece, Singapore, Thailand, Vietnam, India and China. These relationships lead to research collaborations as well as lecturer and student exchanges.

The University of Haifa cooperates and has academic agreements with a large number of colleges and universities in North America, Europe, and East Asia.
